"It is wise for us to recur to the history of our ancestors. Those who do not look upon themselves as the link connecting the past with the future, do not perform their duty to the world." Daniel Webster.

Quoted from a friend's letter about the Kendalls.
"All composing a worthy group of descendants of worthy progenitors who will adorn the ordinary walk of life.

"A man who fears to disgrace his ancestors is certainly less likely to disgrace himself."

Speaking of ancestors
If you could see your ancestors
all standing in a row
There might be some of them, perhaps,
You wouldn't care to know.

But here's another question which Requires a different view:
If you could meet your ancestors,
Would they be proud of you?
- Exchange.

"A man who fears to disgrace his ancestors is certainly less likely to disgrace himself."

✓ Kendall derived from Kendal in Westmoreland, England.
Francis Kendall, alias Miles came under a feigned name to prevent his parents knowing of his coming to America.
Kendal — Devon — Durham — York
Kendale — Devon — Durham — Leicester, Warwick, Cornwall, Derby.
Kendall — Herts — Sussex.

As early as the 14th Century the family was known for its family mark — extra toe or finger.
Hugh de Kendall M.P. 1684 Gov. of Barbadoes five years, Lord High Admiral etc. — died July 10, 1708. Buried in West Minister Abbey.
25 of the Kendall Arms & Crests are described in Burkes General Armory.
In America the Kendalls are noted for their good sense, strong minds, and love of right and country.

One hundred and twenty copies of Kendall Memorial were printed.

To all the descendants of Josiah Kendall.

Man lives but for one generation, his name for many. A good name is more to be prized than life."
Japanese Proverb.

✓ In regard to the family in England, I can only say that it is ancient and honorable. As early as the 14th Cen. it was noted for its family mark — i e — the extra finger and toe. Not a very desirable destinction but one that is still conferred on some of its members.

It will doubtless be a disappointment to some that I have given no family Arms or Crest but as I am unable to connect our ancestry with those of the name in England I must omit that which at best would only be conjectural. If sufficiently interested the reader will consult Burke's General Armory. He will find some twenty five Kendall Arms and Crests there in described.

"One generation passeth away and another generation cometh.
/ The Two Mysteries

We know not to what sphere the loved ones go
Nor why we're left to wander still, nor why we do not know.

But this we know: our loved and dead, if they should come this day —
Should come and ask us — "What is life?" not one of us could say.

Life is a mystery as deep as ever death can be:
Yet, oh, how sweet it is to us, this life we live and see!

Thus might they say — these vanished ones — and blessed is the thought
"So death is sweet to us, beloved, though we may tell you naught."

We may not tell it to the quick — this mystery of death —
Ye may not tell us, if ye would — the mystery of breath.

The child who enters life — comes not with knowledge or intent
So those who enter death must go as little children sent.

Nothing is known. But I believe that God is overhead.
And as life is to the living — so death is to the dead.

Kendall.

The name is derived from the town of Kendal in Westmoreland, England was called from the river Ken. on which it is situated and the word dale. The dale of the river Ken. The town was celebrated for its buckram or green druggets — at one time the clothing of the poor in London. Shakespeare's Falstaff says —

"But as the devil would have it, three misbegotten Knaves in Kendal green came at my back and let drive at me."

Marriage record -

Ffrancis Kendall, alias Miles, and Mary Tedd (Tidd) maryed 24th of 10 mo [Dec. 24.] 1644.

The following was copied from the Index Register of the Kendall Family by Winthrop R. Kendall of Oak Park, Jan. 16, 1926.

Francis Kendall b. 1620 in England was at Charlestown 1640 and the same year signed orders for Woburn where he built the first mill and was a town officer and a man of great respectability and influence. Some have conjectured that he come from the county of Kent and others from the town of Kendal in Westmoreland, and because of his alias Miles, some have thought assumed a disguise to escape religious persecution common to the times, others in order that he might conceal his intended departure from his parents and one story has it that he was stolen from Ralph Miles in England. But he was twenty at the time of his arrival and had an older brother Thomas, in America and possibly a cousin Mabel the wife of William Read. These stories are hardly worthy of credence. Some have thought he was the son of John Kendall, because he named his oldest son John, but it seems more plausible that he was the son of Miles Kendall and in giving his name as Francis Kendall son of Miles had himself erroneously put down as Francis Miles and at the time of his marriage Dec. 24, 1644 with Mary, daughter of John and Margaret Tidd of Woburn, he took pains to have the matter set right on the public records. And he may have been the son of Abraham Kendall who sailed with Francis Drake and perhaps received the name of 7th Francis in honor of that doughty admiral. He died at Woburn in 1708 leaving a will with twenty articles in which he remembers the daughters of his brother Thomas of Reading but make no mention of the children of Mabel Kendall Read except the one who married his daughter. He was probably interred in the old cemetery at Woburn Center but many of the stones have been broken or buried and the place is overgrown with poison ivy. His home was something over a mile west from Woburn Center on the Lexington Road. But this as well as the mill disappeared long ago, though the foundations may still be seen. It would be a fitting tribute for his numerous descendants to erect here a substantial monument to his memory.

√ The will of Francis Kendall is dated May 9, 1704. He called himself a miller. He left ½ the mill to John, ¼ to Thomas & ¼ to Samuel. He gave all his children farms and remembered six grandsons and three grand daughters. He was one of the selectmen of Woburn. Was fined six pence for being late at meeting - 1674
He attended meetings of the Anabaptists. Publicly expressed contempt for Infant Baptism and was prosecuted before Middlesex Court.

√ 7 Francis Kendall lived about a mile west on the road to Lexington.

Jacob Kendall

Jacob-2 was born at Woburn, Mass. Jan. 25, 1660-1, eighth child and youngest son of Francis Kendall who was at that time forty one years of age while his wife (Mary Tidd) was about thirty-three.

Jacob married first Jan. 2, 1683-4 when twenty three years of age, Persis, aged twenty, daughter of John and Rebecca (Atkinson) Haywood of Concord, Mass. Persis was born at Concord Apr. 24, 1664 and died at Woburn Oct. 19, 1694 aged thirty years, five mos, twenty five days.

Jacob married second Jan 10, 1694-5 when thirty-four years of age, Alice, widow of Christopher Temple who had been killed by the Indians Sept. 28, 1691, at a place called since then Temple Rock, about thirty rods above the present upper mill of the Nashua Manufacturing Co., though the rock is now covered by the water of the mill dam.

Richard Temple, son of Abraham Temple, is supposed to be the father of Christopher Temple, although there was another Richard Temple of Reading who married Debarah, daughter of Thomas Parker (b. 1636) brother of John Parker, who married Hannah, daughter of Dea. Thomas Kendall of Reading. And there was a Richard Temple, a son of Robert of Saco, Me. before 1670, who was killed by Indians in 1676, and his wife and children fled to Boston for safety. And there was Benjamin Temple who married after 1719 Rebecca (Hartwell) widow of Simeon Haywood.

Jacob, by this marriage with Alice, became the step-father of the three children of Christopher Temple.

1. Jeremiah b. Oct. 6, 1686 and lived at Westford.
2. Alice b. Jan. 3, 1689
3. Christopher b. Oct. 3, 1690. Married Jemaina ——— and lived at Dunstable till after 1728, and was Corporal of the militia there 1725 in Capt. Eleaza Tyng's Company but was at Merrimac N.H. 1747, at Westford 1749 and at Littleton 1765

Richard Hassell b. 1622 settled in Cambridge before 1643 – admitted freeman 1647 – He and his wife Joan were early members of church of Cambridge. In the division of Shawshin now Billerica by Cambridge in 1652 he received lot 69 – of 60 acres. He moved to Billerica in 1671 and Apr. 12, 1678 he was chosen "to inspect the lads on the Sabbath days". He was an intelligent man and a worthy citizen. There is no record of his death.

Children:

1. Elizabeth b. Sept. 20, 1643 m. Nov. 1, 1661 – Joseph Wright
2. Joseph b. Sept. 20, 1645
3. Esther b. Dec. 6, 1648 m Obediah Perry
4. Alice b. about 1665 m. Christopher Temple – 2nd Jacob Kendall.

Joseph Hassell son of Richard – born Cambridge Sept. 20, 1645 m. Anna Perry a daughter of Wm and Anna Perry of Watertown. Fox confuses this family with that of Richard his father.

Joseph Hassell, his wife and son Benjamin were killed by the Indians Sept. 2, 1691

– Temple –

P. 81. Christopher Temple born about 1660 probably son of Richard and Joanna Temple of Concord, Mass. Came to Dunstable soon after 1680 and here married – Dec. 3, 1685, Alice Hassell – Youngest daughter of Richard and Joan Hassell. He was constable in 1691 – killed by Indians Sept. 28, 1691. Widow married Jan. 10, 1694 – Jacob Kendall. (b. Jan. 25, 1661)
They had eleven children –
Alice and Christopher Temple had three children.

Alice, the second wife of Jacob-2- was the daughter of Joseph and Ann ( ) Hassell of Dunstable, and grand daughter of Richard and Joan ( ) Hassell of Dunstable from Watertown and Cambridge. This Joseph Hassell and his wife Ann and son Benjamin were killed by Indians Sept. 26, 1691 and his son Richard was captured by them Sept. 28 and the same day his brother in law Obadiah Perry was killed by the murderous red skins.

Jacob, April 25, 1696 when thirty five years of age and shortly after his second marriage, bought of Benjamin Peirce tailor, the following described eight tracts of land, amounting to about one hundred acres in the northwest part of old Woburn also called Happy End, Shawshin, and Second Parish, but now known as Burlington and adjoining Billerica and Bedford.

1. Thirty acres with dwelling house, barn and outhouses, and a new house not finished in West End of Woburn.

2. Four and one half acres plow lot, bought of Major William Johnson, surveyor of Woburn, who had picked out for himself nine hundred acres of the choicest land in this part of town.

3. Six acres meadow south of the brook, (probably Maple Meadow Brook) that also had been purchased of Major Johnson.

4. Twelve acres woodland near Long Meadow, bought in 1686 of John Lock, brother in law of Samuel Kendall and son of William Lock whose daughter Abigail was the wife of Nathaniel Kendall.

5. Twelve acres near Hodge Hole, bought in 1682 of Samuel Carter whose widow became the wife of John Kendall.

6. About five acres plow lot in Maple Meadow Plains.

7. About five acres plow lot near Sandy Ridge by Shawshin Path, the road that ran from Woburn through Billerica to Dunstable.

8. Seventeen acres upland and meadow at Long Meadow, that Benjamin Peirce had purchased of his brother John Peirce.

Besides this land, the deed conveyed certain live stock and other personal property to Jacob Kendall. Much of this real estate had come to Robert Peirce from his father in law John Knight and had been conveyed to his son Benjamin Peirce July 3, 1693 on condition of his caring for him and his wife for life.

And now Benjamin Peirce transferred it to Jacob Kendall for the consideration of seventy pounds sterling and an agreement on the part of Jacob Kendall to care for and maintain Benjamin Peirce's "aged father and mother Robert Peirce and Mary Knight" for life.

In the deed Jacob Kendall is described as "~~yeoman~~ of Woburn". Mary, the wife of Robt. Peirce died Mar. 18, 1701 and Robt. Peirce died Sept, 10, 1706.

Jacob, in 1712, was styled "senior," so his eldest son Jacob must have been living at that time in Woburn. About 1716 Jacob senior removed to Billerica; and here his youngest son Jacob was born Aug. 23, 1717 making the fourth Jacob in his family.

In 1736 Jacob, senior, aged 75, removed to Bedford to live with his oldest son Jacob as appears from the following indenture, a bond being usually required of every new comer that he might not become a public charge.

Bedford, June 21, 1736.

I, Jacob Kendall, of Bedford, do promise and engage for me and my heirs to free and secure the town of Bedford from any charge that shall arise from the maintenance of my father and mother, Jacob and Alice Kendall, as witness my hand:

"Jacob Kendall"

Many of his descendants have an extra finger or toe and sometimes two, though this "lusus naturae" seldom if ever appears among the daughters, and yet may re-appear in their sons. As a rule this supplusage is removed in childhood, so that seldom any mark of it remains in the adult. And yet the Star Publishing Co. claims that a certain great scientist holds that we should all be much better if five fingers and a thumb were universal among us. It continues:

This famous German scientist says that ~~our worst~~ our worst ancestor is the five-toed salamander of the coal age. We are his direct descendants, and, because he had five toes we each have five fingers. If he had had an extra toe we would have had an extra finger. You will understand the use of that extra finger, if you think about it for a moment. In the first place our decimal system of computing is based upon the fact that we have just ten fingers. The primative man counted up as far as ten and then began over again, so that ten is the basis of our calculations. Ten is a most awkward number mathematically — it can only be divided by two and five — only by two of its ten numbers. The duo decimal, or twelve, system on the other hand, is an admirable and economic system vastly superior to the decimal. It is taught to some extent, but only as a theory. If it had not been for our five toed old salamander grand father, we should have had the duo decimal system, with its numerous advantages, including, the divisibility of twelve by two, three, four, and six. With six fingers instead of five we should be able to play many musical instruments better than at present — in fact, if we were all born this way, we should be vastly better off as a race than we are now."

This article appeared in the Chicago Evening American for Mon. Mar. 21, 1904, and its inspiring cause was a certain Mr. Conners of Connecticut who required the doctors to remove an extra finger that the unseen powers had bestowed upon his new born son.

There are various traditions in the Kendall family relating to this peculiarity. Some claim it got into the blood through some mother; others claim it extends back fourteen hundred years in England. And yet, as a matter of fact, it is not peculiar to the Kendall family, and many lives have never known an instance of it. I have observed it among different nationalities that have come to America and surely most of us have seen an extra-toed cat.

Professor Starr of the Chicago University set out a number of years ago to tabulate instances of this variation, and if possible trace its origin and effects, but found it more of an undertaking than he had figured on.

A historian of the Pierce family found the extra toe and finger in certain lines of that family, and ascribed it to a marriage of a certain member with a daughter of Francis Kendall, when as a matter of fact it has been conclusively shown that this man, James Pierce, did not marry into the Kendall family.

John Kendall.

John 3 (Jacob 2 - Francis 1) was born at Woburn Jan. 19, 1696-7, and died at Dunstable July 27, 1759 aged 63 yrs. 6 mos. 8 days. He evidently had a twin brother also called John who died at Woburn Oct. 17, 1697, aged 8 mos. and 29 days. He was Lieutenant of the Woburn militia, and ever after known as Lieut. John Kendall, though sometimes confused with his cousin who was called Mr. John Kendall (John 2 Francis 1) Mr. John married Mar. 25, 1718, Deborah Richardson who died Mar. 3, 1739 aged 45 years and Mr. John died Feb. 13, 1809.

Lieutenant John with several of his brothers removed to Dunstable about 1720, a little south of the present line of Nashua, N.H.. Dunstable township at this time included a part of the present territory of New Hampshire, and now Mass. towns. In 1732 Townsend, Mass. was set off including what is now Pepperell. Also in 1732 Hudson N.H. was set off under the name of Nottingham and later changed to Nottingham West. In 1733 Merrimac, N.H. was set off under the name of Rumford. In 1734 Litchfield, N.H. was set off and in 1736 Hollis N.H. was set off under the name of West Parish. In 1741 the state line between Massachusetts and New Hampshire was established and divided the township of Dunstable into two nearly equal parts, Nashua and Nashville being included in New Hampshire.

In son "Hot Kendall"

✓ June 1739, Dec. 14, Lieutenant John Kendall sold to Nathaniel Cummings a "Certin peace of meadow Land Lying in Dunstable aforesaid and in Brattles Farm so called and on ye Weste side of Salmon Brook, half an acre by measure." In 1743 he was selectman of Dunstable and one of the assistants of the town clerk in recording the votes of the town. In 1744 John and John Jr. appear among the tax payers, and July 23, 1744 Lieutenant John was appointed with Joseph Eaton, and John Woodward to petition the "General Court" for fortifications to defend us".

In 1733 John, Jacob and Daniel Kendall, living in the south part of Dunstable, joined with others in a protest against a proposed change in the location of the meeting house, and in 1755 he joined with Ebenezer Butterfield in a deed of conveyance "of ye land ye meeting house stands on"

The choice of spots on the church floor for building pews – was made to members in accordance with the amount of their taxes, and Lieut John Kendall having the eighth choice selected spot numbered one. This was Oct. 21, 1757 and John and his wife Susannah appear this year among the signers of the church covenant.

Lieutenant John Kendall married about 1722 Susannah _____. He died in 1759 and she in 1766 and both are interred in the old burial place on Meeting House Hill.

Quoted from a letter from Aunt Hannah K. Mattoon - Oct. 31 - 1901 West Somerville Mass.

"About our branch of the family - Grandfather (Deacon Nathaniel Kendall - 5 -) with two brothers I believe - went from Ashburnham, Mass. to Vermont. Southern Vt. probably not far from 1790. He lived in Windsor for sometime and your grandfather - Samuel Stillman Kendall was born there in 1799. Afterwards he went to Derby. When I was in Windsor, Vt. in my Uncle Fletcher's family - many years ago - an old lady sent for me to come and see her, for she remembered my father (Dr. Samuel Stillman Kendall) as a boy. Your father's second name Temple, was for a brother of his grandfather. (Temple Kendall) who always remained in Mass. When I was a child my father went to Boston with Uncle Doggett, who was nearly blind - for the purpose of seeing if he could be helped at the Boston Eye and Ear Infirmary.

He took the opportunity to go and see his Uncle Temple while was then still living in Ash brenham I think.

Temple Kendall always remained in Dunstable, Mass.

✓ In 1753 The new church at Dunstable was placed on the highway passing Temple Kendall's house on a knoll about one mile from Dunstable center towards Tyngsboro, that was a part of Dunstable until set off Feb. 28, 1809. The cemetery was on the western slope of this knoll or hill and commanded a fine view of Wachusett Mountain. In 1773 Dunstable laid out a new road two rods wide from the "Provence Line," commencing north of John's house and running by Temple Kendall's house, "to the road that was laid out by said Kendalls & Samuel Taylor's house. 20. Deacon Nathaniel Kendall – 5 Temple – 4

Nathaniel b. Feb. 22, 1766 at Dunstable, Middlesex Co. Mass. This was on Washington's birthday nine years before the breaking out of the Revolution.

I received the following in May 1908

Hannah Kiebling and Nathaniel Kendall were married in Ashburnham, Mass. Nov. 26, 1789 by Samuel Wilder, Justice of the Peace.

Walton B. Whitney
Town Clerk
Ashburnham, Mass.

Hannah Kiebling was daughter of John Kieblinger and Catherine Wolfe of Ashburnham, Mass.

Cousin Charles Carpenter wrote Dec. 13, 1897.

"Hannah K. Kendall was a mild, gentle woman full medium height, quite muscular and stout, very industrious, knitting mittens and stockings for all the children, in robust health (æt 92), and well able to walk a mile shortly before her death."

Copied Aug 1907 from tomb stone at Derby Cemetary – Vt.

They sleep but on that last glad morn
The trump shall bid them rise
To join in that celestial song
With saints in paradise.

This verse is below the items on next page. The stone had fallen before I saw it in 1907. Cousin Zenas Blake had it repaired that fall.

Derby Line

✓ Dea. Nathaniel Kendall
Died
Nov. 1, 1821
aged 56 years
Hannah
his wife died
april 10, 1859
aged 89 years.

✓ Nathaniel probably settled in Windsor Vt. shortly after his marriage as he appears in the first U. S. Census of 1790 with his wife and daughter Hannah who was born Oct. 29, 1790. The village of Windsor is beautifully situated on the Connecticut R. a little north of Mt. Ascutney. He removed in 1807 to Derby Vt. and purchased a farm to the northwest of the village. Here he was a deacon in the Baptist church and it is said the first meetings were held in his large new barn. In 1825. a division occurred in this church and it was reorganized and the early records were lost or destroyed.

June 28, 1815 Nathaniel Kendall offered the concluding prayer at the ordination of Mr. John Dale as pastor of the church in the adjoining village of Coventry, which had about 1810 a population of 178 and at this time David Kendall built the first grist mill there on Day Brook, a little westerly of where the road running north by Benj. Thrasher's place (1859) crosses the stream.

Derby, also called Derby Center is a village in Orleans Co. Vt. on the Clyde R. a little east of Lake Memphremagog and close to the line between United States and Canada. In 1883 the township including Derby, West Derby and Derby Line had a population of 2030 and is the seat of Derby Academy - a Baptist institution.

Nathaniel died at Derby, Vt. Nov. 1821 aged fifty-five years, eight months and ten days and is interred there with his wife. One large stone marks the grave of both.

Charles Carpenter also wrote - Hannah K. was quite tall and of large frame. Of blameless disposition, a devoted Christian & very industrious

"A worthy and peaceful woman, well beloved of a numerous circle of descendants among whom she lived.

Letter of Jan 19, 1898.

Spotted fever raged in Derby and I think took six children out of Grandfather's family.

I saw the overgrown cemetary where these, five not six children were buried when I visited Vermont in Aug. 1907. L.K.T.

Oct. 24, 1809. Nathaniel Kendall of Strafford, Orange Co. bought of Joseph True, of Derby, 130 acres a part of Lot No. 65 in Derby A mortgage came into the possession of Elijah Mason. By deed of Aug. 11, 1815 Mason executed a quit claim deed of premises to N. Kendall of Derby.

Quit claim deed from Hannah Kendall & Moses Blake May 9, 1823. Farm was three miles from Derby Center.

Samuel Stillman Kendall.

Samuel S. — 6 (Nathaniel - 5 Temple 4) was born Jan. 14, 1799 at Windsor Vt. and removed with his father about 1810 to Derby, Vt. He studied medicine with Dr. Moses French Colby, his wife's brother and with Dr. T. W. Adams and graduated from the medical departments of the Vermont University and Dartmouth College. He began the practice of his profession in the neighboring town of Coventry Vt. being the second resident physician there. Dr. Peley Redfield being the first.

He settled in Coventry in the winter of 1823-4 and in 1829 he opened the tavern in Coventry Village. He was town clerk 1836-1844 and 1851-1854. He was town treasurer 1836-1546 and representative to the General Assembly 1838 and 1851.

He removed about June 1, 1852. to Georgeville, Stanstead Co. Quebec and continued the practice of his profession. His medical attainments were of the very first order and he ranked high in his ~~profession~~ and with the most unassuming but sincere piety were combined all the qualities which constitute the real gentleman, says B. F. Hubbard; the historian of Stanstead Co. Quebec Canada.

Georgeville is about twenty miles north of Derby Line Vt. and on the east bank of Lake Memphremagog which is crossed by the national boundary line. My cousin Alice Enos Wright and I went to Georgeville on the steamer Lady of the Lake from Newport and spent the day with Mrs. Wright (alice is mother in Law) aug. 1907.

He and family were members of the Congregational Church

Family of Samuel S. Kendall, M.D.

S.S. Kendall was born at Windsor Vt. Jan. 14, 1799. Came to Derby Vt. with the family in 1810. Studied medicine successively with Drs. M.F. Colby and F.W. Adams. Received diplomas from the Medical Depts of Vermont and Dartmouth Universities Commenced practice in Coventry Vt. but subsequently removed to Georgeville.

The character of Dr. Kendall was one of peculiar interest. With the most unassuming but sincere piety were combined all the qualities which constitute a real gentleman. His medical attainments were of the very first order and he ranked high in his profession. His career though short was eminently useful and he will long be remembered by many in Coventry Vt. and Georgeville - Province of Quebec - Canada.

For a long time the only mill for grinding grain was at West Derby. It was difficult to raise wheat among the stumps and fine flour was so scarce a commodity that it was only used as a luxury.

Large crops of potatoes were raised from which whiskey was manufactured in stills. This whiskey was like money in the bank for it was legal tender in place of money. Price for 200 acres was 2000 gallons of "good merchantable home made first proof whiskey."

The tow and linen from the flax — the yarn from the wool of the sheep was carded, spun, dyed, woven at home and traveling shoe makers made the shoes for the whole family on their periodical visits.

Candles and soap were hand made — the butter and cheese were always made at home. Even the brooms were often made of cedar.

✓ Origin of O.K.

During the Civil War there was a firm of bakers in Chicago — O. Kendall & Sons. They made biscuit for the army stamping O.K. on each. These biscuit came to be preferred by the soldiers who thought them better than the ordinary army bread. Soon O-K. became a cant term of approval in the army and later was carried into civil life.

Moved to Derby in 1807.

Son of Jonathan and Olive Sessions Carpenter.

Hon Timothy Hinman Founder of Derby came to Derby in 1789. Made a road from Greensboro to Derby 1791. Moved his family to Derby 1794. The Carpenter farm adjoined the Kendall farm at Derby Vt. N. West of the town. Chester Carpenter married Betsy Hinman as his second wife May. 8, 1859. She was the daughter of Hon. Timothy Hinman the first settler and inn-keeper of Derby. Chester Carpenter came to Derby in 1807. He cleared ten acres of land and the following winter taught school in Brownington and the next in Derby, in the Moses Blake district. He also taught in the winters of 1809-10. In the summer of 1811 he built his house and in Nov. took his bride there. In 1812 he was Sargeant in Capt. Mason's Company for defense of the frontiers and later became Colonel of the Militia. In Dec. 1815 he bought a farm at Derby Center and opened a tavern. In 1819 he built a new house and lived there till 1839, when he leased it and built himself a new one that was subsequently occupied by Mr. Spear.

In 1825 he joined the Baptist Church and in 1831 gave $1000 toward the new church and parsonage and also the land in the rear of the church for a cemetery. In 1840 he gave $3000 to the Academy at Derby. He was a Free Mason also Justice of the Peace about thirty years.

Chester was son of Jonathan Carpenter, farmer, inn keeper and Town Clerk at Randolph Vt. 1784 from Pomfret Vt. where he went in 1780 from Rehoboth (now Seekonk) Mass. He favored the Free Will Baptists, but when his only cow was sold for taxes levied to support the minister of the Orthodox Congregational Church, while his little children went hungry, he lost all faith in the value of the visible church and never joined any.

Obituary of Charles Carpenter.

The death of Charles Carpenter Monday afternoon at the ripe age of 87 yrs. 9 mos. 12 days, removed from the community one of Vermont's grand old men. Mr. Carpenter was born in Derby village Oct. 7, 1820 being the youngest son of Col. Chester and Hannah Kendall Carpenter. Both lines of his parentage, the Kendalls and Carpenters, were of the best old New England stock, bespeaking for a boy or girl possessing it, a favorable future. He was educated in the schools of his home village, graduated from the famous old Derby Academy from which so many noted men and women have gone forth to do the world's work. Mr. Carpenter was by natural gifts and adaptation a scholarly man, and if he had followed his own preferences would have led a professional life and it would, without doubt, have been eminently successful: but like many others, he became that for which he possessed less taste, and yet as a general merchant he was successful and the forty yrs. spent at Burlington and West Charleston in this line of endeavor gave him an opportunity to know men and things, placing in his path unlimited opportunities for assisting others of which he availed himself to the joy, comfort and upbuilding of many a man woman, boy and girl. "He lived beside the road and was a friend to man."

His ability, good judgement, painstaking methods and uprightness of character caused the community to call him to serve in many public positions of trust: in the County of Orleans as senator and representative of his town in the lower house. He was by personal preference a Congregationalist, but he was too broad and democratic to lose the good fellowship, love and esteem of any communion that represented the Man of Galilee; and minor difference of creed or polity he waived for the larger life, consequently he was always the Christian Gentleman and his life was an open book.

For several years he served this community as Collector of Customs at Derby Line until furloughed by illness for the last twelve years, at the close to answer the hail higher up.

May 8, 1854, he married Betsey Nelson Hinman who survives him. Four children blessed this union- three of whom survive: Mrs. H. A. Clarke of Sharon Springs, Kansas, Mrs. Chas. E. Bennett and Mr. Cra L. Carpenter of Derby Line. It is quite unnecessary to ~~celebrate~~ chronicle here the beauty and sweetness of the 62 years they were together. It has been a sermon on fidelity and homemaking. They passed through many cloudy days, but they always kept step with their faces toward the sun. They epitomized and understood the meaning of the words "Be still and know that I am God."

The funeral was from the home Wed. afternoon at 2 o'clock Rev. H. F. Hallett officiating - The bearers were of the family - O. M. Carpenter, L. P. Jenne, M. A. Adams, and C. E. Bennett. The burial was in Derby Cemetery.

Golden Wedding. Silver Banquet &c -

On Wed. Eve. Aug 2d Mr. & Mrs. Albert A. Silver celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage at their home in Derby, Vt. From among all the pleasant messages delivered on the occasion two are appended - one, an original poem contributed by an honored townsman Charles Carpenter of Derby Line - the other, a letter from Albert E. Winship - the editor of the Journal of Education.

Half a hundred autumns
Whose choicest fruits abound
Half a hundred spring times
With beauteous garlands crowned.
Glad years, rolling onward
Toward the bright profound
Where the ever ringing chorus
Knows no wailing sound.

Glories of the sunset
Mantle all the sky

Promise of new blessings
Yet more pure and might
As coming days of brightness
May banish every sight
'Till pearly gates swing open
To endless joys on high.
Chas. Carpenter.

Notice from paper of Derby Line.

Mr. & Mrs. Chas. Carpenter returned on Fri. from a week's stay among friends at Derby Center. Mr. Carpenter read papers at both of the centennial celebrations held during their visit, one at the Congregational Church and one at the Baptist Church.

Feb. 1776 Jonathan Carpenter enlisted in Capt. John Paine's Company and May 15, 1777 he enlisted for six months in Capt. Hill's Co. Feb. 13, 1778 he embarked on a privateer, The Brig Reprisal, which was captured by the Unicorn on Feb. 19, 1778. He was carried to England where he remained a prisoner of war till exchanged July 22, 1779 when he went to France and embarked on the Griffin and arrived in Rohobeth Nov. 3, 1779 and on Mar. 3, 1780 received 130 pounds prize money for captures made by the Griffin. He invested in 100 acres of land at Pomfret, Vt. at twelve shillings an acre. This was in April 1780 and in the meantime he had been teaching school but Aug. 15, 1780 he enlisted for three months.

Yesterday our esteemed citizen, Hon. Charles Carpenter, reached his 80th mile stone. Very few attain the four score years and are blessed with such excellent health and command of mental clearness as Mr. Carpenter; and as he goes in and out before us as a citizen and christian gentleman, it leads one to a greater belief in the justness of the compensations of life, that it pays to lead a good life from youth to old age, and that the oft repeated saying: "All must sow their wild oats," is fallacious. Mr. Carpenter is blessed by the normal health of every faculty, the senses all perform their duty to his comfort and those with whom he comes in contact. He walks erect and his step is quick and as elastic as many of our citizens of middle age. His complexion is that of a boy, and all the worthy new innovations of modern life find him able to quickly comprehend and accept them as any one in our villages. He spends his time reading aloud in his home, calling on friends and enjoying life. When he was actively engaged in business, up to five years ago, he never found time for a vacation, and perhaps these happy days are one of the compensations for his busy life, and we would not by this wish to imply that he is less busy to-day, for he is busy keeping cheery and happy. It is a sure indication of good care of a well made watch that it continues its accurate time-keeping qualities, and that it was made in good balance and perhaps this analogy will apply to this grand old man, that he was made in good balance, the fruit proclaims this. The JOURNAL extends congratulations and a prayer for many returns of the day, the beauty of which from sunrise to sunset epitomized the character of this man.

"How blessed it is to die old
And to sit near the evening gate
Ready to enter the portals,
And willing with patience to wait
Knowing that Angels innumerable
Are the cheers of the years
That ahead are the glad reunions
And behind, all the struggles
And tears."

Laura Kendall Thomas.

Dec. Aug. 1907 I visited Aunt Hannah at East Coventry in the house where Dr. Redfield lived many years before. She was very gentle, a great reader, a writer of beautiful letters and a good house keeper.

As a young woman she lived in Somerville, Mass. and was private secretary to one of the members of the firm of Houghton, Mifflin & Co. During my visit she took me to Derby Line, Vt. to Chas. Carpenter's home. She told me of my father being so good to her when she was a little girl. Also how he loved to tease. Once he had the sleigh full of children and drove over a drift and tipped them all out. This was in Georgeville, Que.

She died in 1918. During the last twenty years of her life I wrote to her very often and her letters were a great delight and comfort to me.

The following is an extract from a letter from Oren T. Kendall to Charles Carpenter, Derby Line. From Coaticook, Quebec Feb. 10, 1904.

Isaac Newton Kendall and Harriet married at the ages of 19 & 17 yrs. In 1825 moved to Montreal & worked with grand father Canning, and built a house in St. Lawrence suburbs and finished it about the first of May. There was an excitement about lumbering on the Ottawa River at that time one — Biglow, formerly of Derby Line, was commencing on the Riviere du Lievre or Rabbit River which empties into the Ottawa River 18 miles below the city of Ottawa & Hull.

Father being well acquainted with Biglow and I suppose partly by his advice, decided to try pioneer life in the bush. Accordingly about the 6th of May 1825 we made a move for up the river. Went to La Chine, nine miles, the first day in French carts. The next day we went in an open batteau — or propelled by men with sculling poles at the sides of the boat, working the length of the boat. I remember our boat being drawn by the St. Ann's rapids with three or four yoke of oxen and we stayed one night at Lake Two Mountains, in a tavern. The next day we arrived at Point Fortune. The next day we went twelve miles past the rapids in horse carts, woods all the way and (mud)? Just a road slashed out. We arrived at what is now called Hawkesbury the next morning. We went on board a steamer called the "Union", just finished, the first on the Ottawa - We steamed away all that day and night until ten o'clock the next day — the 10th of May 1825; we arrived at Buckingham Landing — 42 miles and we had done first rate.

Father went that day back to Big Low's camp for a team of oxen and a sled to move the family so the next day we got to our journey's end. 130 miles in 6 days. We found a house of logs about 12 x 15 ft and a clearing of ½ acre. The rest all woods to the front 5 miles and north to the N. pole.

Father worked for Mr. Biglow that summer and during the time created 200 acres of wild land three miles farther up river. Moved on to it March 1827 & improved 30 or 40 acres. Finally sold out after seven years and moved to Fort Covington & give the children some education as there was no school within 40 miles of us. I never saw a school house from the time I was seven until I was seventeen, then only two winters and father moved back to Buckingham and worked for Biglow and kept a boarding house for a number of years.

Orin T. Kendall, an old resident of Coaticook, died recently at the home of his step-daughter, Mrs. H. W. Ellis at West Derby, Wed. Apr. 24". The body was taken to Coaticook for interment. Mr. Kendall was Coaticook's first mill-wright, having settled in that town about a half century ago. He was ninety years and leaves one son J. N. Kendall now a large contractor in the Western states.

Aunt Hannah wrote me that Orin Kendall called at their home in Somerville, Mass. one winter and he so resembled Dr. Samuel Stillman Kendall that grandma was almost overpowered when she saw him. He said, "You do not know me" and grandma said, "No, but I am sure you are a Kendall.

Letter from Mrs. Springer July 14-26

She was a person that Mr. Springer and I admired very much and saw so much of in those Abingdon days - so long ago - She certainly was a successful teacher and as such had many friends.

Copied from a letter written Laura Kendall Thomas by Minnie Driver Clarke wife of Colby Clarke and daughter in law of Laura Colby Kendall Clarke Dec. 15, 1935.

"You asked information about Mother Clarke but I fear I cannot tell you much about her. I once passed the house where she used to live near Lone Rock, Oregon and asked Colby to stop the car and let me go in. It must have been comfortable and even cozy when the Clarke family dwelt there although no one had lived there in years when I visited the place. The house was razed not long ago. Colby said his mother always had flowers growing in the yard.

Nan tells me there were only one or two women in and about Lone Rock that were at all congenial to a refined woman like her mother. One of these she taught to paint. Lilla (Myron's daughter) once told me that her grandmother used to read Shakespeare to her when she was just a little girl. No wonder Nan has joined a Shakespeare Club.

I gather Mother Clarke was living a sweet, cheerful, and helpful life among the uncouth people in the community in which she spent her last days. I have even seen some of the results of her refining influence since I came west.

Title - The Kendall Family in America.
Edited by Wm. Montgomery Clemens - in 1919, Hackensack, New Jersey

✓ Kendalls in England.

The Kendalls, Kendals, Kendales - an old British family notable but not numerous through many centuries, are centered more or less in County Westmoreland, where the town of Kendal is located on the banks of the river Kent. The name is found in Lancashire, Essex, Devonshire, Cornwall and Derbyshire.

The ancestor of the American Kendall family was John Kendall who was born in 1608 and died in County Cambridge 1660. Two of his sons, Francis and Thomas came to New England before 1643.

Francis Kendall, alias Miles, and Mary Tedd (Tidd) maryed 24th of 10th Mo. (24 Dec. OS) 1644. Mary Tidd was the daughter of John Tidd. It is claimed that Francis left Eng. against the wishes of his family, using the name of Miles until he was settled in this country. Francis was admitted freeman 10 May 1643. He died 1718 aged 89 in Woburn, Mass. His wife Mary Tidd died in 1705.

The surname Kendall in England is of local derivation from the town of Kendal in Westmorland County. The town's name was doubtless derived from that of the River Ken on which it is located. The family in England is very large and widely distributed, many of the branches bearing arms and having distinguished members. The name is common in Bedfordshire at Basingbourne, Essex in Lancashire: at Smithby Derbyshire: in Cornwall: in Devonshire and Herfordshire.

In 1575 a branch of the family settled in Thorphulen, Durham a younger son of the Kendall family of Ripon, Yorkshire where the family lived at very early date. Among the early Kendalls who were prominent was John Kendall of Nottingham - killed in Battle of Bosworth in 1485 fighting in army of Richard III.

John Kendall progenitor of the American family lived in the County of Cambridge, England in 1646, died there in 1650. Two of his sons came to America. 1 Francis mentioned below and 2 Deacon Thomas who was a proprietor of Reading, Mass. in 1644, was admitted freeman May 10, 1645, had ten daughters and no sons thus leaving no descendants bearing his name. Francis the immigrant son of John Kendall born England believed to be ancestor of all Kendalls in America. In Dec. 1652 he deposed his age as 35. On April 2, 1662 he deposed his age was about 48 yrs. Possibly the date of his birth was between the two dates indicated say - 1615. He came from England before 1643. With 31 others he signed the Town orders of Woburn, Mass. Dec. 15, 1644. He had been living in Charlestown of which Woburn was then a part, and where he was a tax payer in 1645. Admitted freeman May 10, 1643.

Sewell in his History of Woburn says of him, "He was a man of great responsibility and influence in the place of his residence.

In Dec. 1658 he deposed his age about 38. Apr. 2, 1662 he deposed his age about 45. Possibly his age was between these - say bor 1618. Came from England before 1640. He and 31 others signed orders of Woburn Dec. 18, 1640. He had been in Charlestown, of which Woburn was a part, and a taxpayer there in 1645. Had brother Thomas who had ten daughters.

The father of Francis and Thomas is believed by some writers to be John Kendall. Admitted Freeman May 10, 1648.

Sewell says of him: He was a gentleman of great respectibility and influence in his place of residence. He served the town at different times for 18 yrs. as selectman and on important committees, as distributing grants of land to the pioneers - on building the meeting house. He was tithing man in 1676. Not entirely in accord with Puritan church was fined for infraction of church rules about infant baptism or attendance at communion or attending meetings of Anabaptists. A miller by trade. History of the Colby Family by James W. Colby - E 7 C 6718

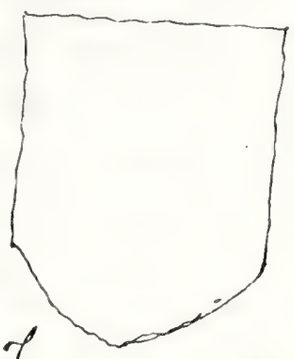
Mädsen, Danish writer on town names, thinks that Colby means "The Summit Town" - "The Home on the Hill." Kolbr is old Norse for hilltop.

Sea shells in Colby Coat of Arms may be either Syria or Spain. Henry bore these emblems as early as 1315 - Compartella Pilgrimage.



Anthony Colby came early in 1631 to Cambridge, Mass. Before he left he owned three houses, many lots of land and fine cattle.

Danes came to England. Koldby - Robt. Master of Colby - Norfolk, England. Colby was a name of a place before it became the name of a man. A Danish name before an English one. The inhabitants of the town changed many times. Not known whether the man Colby was English or Danish. Not till W m the Conqueror skimmed the cream of all races, culled out the most energetic of all war men and made a new race fit to take command of civilization did British property have settled ownership. But the warranty deeds he recorded in that warm red ink have this time held in tact for well nigh a thousand years.

Every knight received such portion of landed property as would maintain him and give service to the king. Very few portions went to natives. Several generations elapsed before any family of Saxon blood was raised to honor, even to a baronage. Still no foreign feet could stamp out the Saxon language and it soon eradicated the dialect of France.

Colby blood is in chief of Danish antecendancy.

p. 16. Doomsday Book written in 1060. (Colby family found in later records.) All English lands & houses now had new proprietors and were massed into 700 Baronies or Great Fiefs and then sub-divided by the barons to the knights. A knights fee being 200 A. more or less and the service of all the natives or bondmen.

Ingworth Manor including Colby and five other parishes was some twenty miles north of Norwich, Eng. on the old road to Cromer Port.

P. 53 - Colbys of America.

Puritanism dated from an English Church quarrel in 1550. The Pilgrims were not Puritans but Separatist. Queen Elizabeth suspended ⅓ the London Clergy as early as 1559. Rev. Thos. Colby D. D. Rector of Caxton was ejected with his large family - Any private person staying from church a month — advising others or attending an irregular worship would be imprisoned, banished or hanged. King James drew lines still tighter. Winthrop Company settled in Boston in 1630 fifteen hundred strong. In 1640 there were over 20000 settlers in Mass. Then for a hundred years not so many came. Eastern England was the cradle of Puritanism. Yet the majority of emigrants came from the south western part of England. They were gentry, farmers, fishers, from all about, not from any one county.

The old Mayflower brought many cultivated - educated men hither and Anthony Colby was one.

Many were the families in England - divided and dispersed by religious questions in those days. Winthrop was a Suffolk man. No trade or calling was recorded for Athony Colby.

The squadron sailed from Yarmouth - He came with Winthrop in 1630. We know his first wife only as Susanna - John was born 1633. Anthony Colby was No. 93 on record of Boston First Church. Rev. John Cotton - pastor. Athony lived in Cambridge several years. Took oath of freeman there in 1634. Lived in Ipswich and then moved to Salisbury near Merrimack R. Lived there nine yrs. and then moved up the river.

His friends were Jared Haddon, Wm Sargent and Thos. Macy from Chilmark, England. Macy harbored two Quakers; fled to Nantucket. A. Colby bought Macy home for a mare, boards, corn and such other things as Macy needed and twelve or fourteen pounds in money. the whole cost £2 or so.

Macy returned after A. Colby's death and denied the sale and tried to expel the widow. The Macy farm was bounded on the west by the burying ground where the meeting house stood but not Golgotha which is a quarter mile northerly.

Originally a two story house 20x25 ft.
Back lean to was added - Queen Ann style after 1700.
A. Colby was a hard worker and had orchards, gardens and raised kine.

Anthony's lots were.

Black River	Great Swamp	River
Lion's Mouth	Hampton	Whisker's Hill
Fox Island	Third Division	Fourth Division

Much land was taken into New Hampshire by the new state line and descendants live at Newton - Humphry -

In Yankee parlance this Mr. Colby was "smart". Put him any where and he would take root and grow. In 1651 he was elected selectman with Philip Challis. Died 1661. Probably buried at Golgotha. This burying ground was enclosed as private property through avarice of some one. Head stones were taken for building purposes - one for an oven bottom where letters marked the loaves "Sacred to the Memory". His exact grave is not known.

His house was on south west side of Main St. In 1682 Anthony's widow deeded the Macy house to her son Samuel. Her will was in 1701. The house passed to Samuel Jr. who remodeled it to its present shape.

Amesbury birth records did not begin till 1686.

Samuel Colby m. Elizabeth Sargent dau. of Wm Sargent.
Mary Colby m. Willis Sargent Jr.
John Colby m. Frances Hoyt. in 1656.

Samuel was made freeman or townsman in 1660 and was then 27 21 yrs or more. He became a squatter on land - Ox Common in East Haverhill. He returned to Amesbury. In 1689 he was a representative to the General Court. In 1696 was chosen assessor - was tithing man for years - resigning in 1701. In 1678 was chosen to keep public house at Bartlett's Corner next to his mother's house. Died 1715.

Reputation of his inn was well maintained by his widow and descendants long afterwards.

In 1686 he was prosecuted for selling liquor without a license - denied charge and was acquitted.

He and John's son John were soldiers against King Philip in 1676 - were at the bloody massacre at Deerfield on Connec. R. a township of land was given to each participant. It was 60 years later that Samuel Colby's eldest son Samuel was admitted to first choice of lots in new tract near Hadley.

A generation may be averaged to 33 years or three to a century. Each man was close to 23 when his eldest child was born. Of the sons of Samuel Colby Jr. 15 were born in the old home.

In 1723 Enoch Colby son of Samuel of Amesbury received a bequest from Benj. Sanborn late of Hampton Falls where Enoch was living - of half his right in Chester N. H. and his house in Chester. Enoch married Abisl Sanborn; Benj - Sanborn's daughter in 1725. It is said Enoch was in Chester in 1719 before town was chartered but now came there for good.

He died at Chester.

98 There is a story that there came from Chester in England before 1700 a new and distinct race of Colbys — Enoch Beniah - Sarah - Mrs. Turner. They lived in Salisbury region then went to Chester, N. H. They concede same English descent.

Chester is a pretty town on a hill 20 miles from the ocean.

Cousin Nan (Mrs. Simon B. Barker) sent me "Forests and Clearings" that I might copy the account of Dr. Moses French Colby. The book belonged to her mother who gave it to Nat K. Clarke. It was written by B. F. Hubbard – Stanstead P. Q. 1874.

Colby Family.

We have no authentic account of the ancestry of this family. Tradition says that two families of this name came from England in 1632 and settled in Old Salisbury, Mass.. One of these families afterwards removed to Chester, N. H. Samuel Colby a descendant in the sixth generation from this family m. Ruth French. They were natives of Candia N. H. Settled originally in Thornton N. H.; removed to Derby Vt., in 1798, and were among the pioneers in the settlement of that town. They were intelligent and useful members of the community. Their children were:

Nehemiah		m. Melinda Larabee;
Sarah		m Dea. Wm Verbeck
Moses French	1795	m Lemira Strong
Ruth F.		m. Dr. David French
Emily		m Dr. Samuel S. Kendall

Of these Moses only settled in Canada.

Dr. Moses French Colby.

Was born in Thornton N.H. July 2, 1795. His early opportunities for education, like those of other pioneers, were limited to the common schools of that time: but he succeeded in laying the foundation of that knowledge for which in after life he was so eminently distinguished.

In 1814 he commenced the study of medicine under the charge of Dr. Newcomb of Derby, Vt. attended the lectures of the Medical Department of Yale College in 1817, entered the Medical Department of Dartmouth in 1820 and graduated in 1821.

Commenced practice in Derby that year, was uniformly successful, but not being satisfied with present attainments, he relinquished his practice for a time and, in 1828, entered the School of Practical Anatomy at Harvard College, where he pursued the regular course with attendance at the hospitals.

During that time he formed the acquaintance of Dr. Gould, the late President of Massachusetts Medical Society and one of the most eminent savans of the age, with whom he sustained an interesting correspondence for many years, some parts of which have been published. In this connection it may perhaps be worthy of note that while a few months are now deemed by many as amply sufficient time to complete the education of medical men, Dr. Colby was willing to devote fourteen years of the best part of his life to that science. Indeed he was a student during the whole of his life.

On his return from Cambridge, Mass., he again commenced practice in Derby; and such was his success, that his circuit soon extended over Orleans and Stanstead Counties.

In 1832, he moved to Stanstead, and having passed the rigid examination before the Medical Faculty of Quebec, and obtaining a licensure, commenced practice. In 1837 he received the honorary degree of A.M. from Dartmouth College and about the same time was elected a member of the Provincial Parliament of Stanstead County.

He served during the time of the Rebellion as surgeon for the Militia and Volunteers of the County. At the close of the Rebellion, a union of the two Canadas was effected and the election of the member for Stanstead County for the New Parliament was one of the most exciting events in its political history. The election was contested, by Dr. Colby, the candidate of the Conservative party and Marcus Child, Esq. of the Liberals.

The poll was kept open at Hatley twelve days and during the time both parties worked with a desperation not exceeded in any election. The result was that Mr. Child had a small nominal majority, but the friends of Dr. Colby claimed a majority of the legal votes.

The character of Dr. Colby was one of peculiar interest. While the science of medicine was his forte, he was familiar with the various branches of a liberal education. His contributions to the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal and other distinguished periodicals exhibit an acquaintance with the theory and practice of medicine much in advance of the age in which they were written.

In Northern New England and the Eastern Townships of Canada, he stood decidedly at the head of his profession, and his memory is cherished with respect and esteem. In his religious views he embraced the doctrines of the Reformation and exhibited the spirit of the Gospel in his daily walk and conversation, and was ever a liberal contributor to benevolent enterprises. July 10, 1826 he married Lemira Strong, of Pawlet, Vt. b. May 9, 1806. Dr. Colby died May 4, 1863 aged 67 years. Mrs. Colby lives with her son C.C. Colby on the Plain. (1874)

In 1867 he was elected to represent Stanstead County in the House of Commons of the Legislature of the New Dominion of Canada as convened at Ottawa, Ontario - was re-elected in 1871. Dec. 21, 1858 he married Harriet H. dau. of J. Child Esq. of Wey bridge Vt. She was for some time preceptress at Stanstead Seminary. The political career of Mr. Colby has been a prosperous one. The Colby Family.

Extract from a letter from Mrs. Otis - Andover Mass. Oct. 4, 1908.

Anthony Colby came from England to the Mass Colony with Winthrop's company in 1630. The house in which he lived still stands in Amsbury, Mass. In this house he died in 1661. Previous to his ownership it was the Macy house referred to in Whittier's poem of "The Exiles." In 1900 Moses Colby presented the house to an association that placed it in the hands of the Daughters of the American Revolution. He died in 1901. From 1654 to 1900 it was occupied by Anthony Colby's direct descendants. Our line is viz: Anthony; Samuel; Samuel Colby Jr., Enoch Colby, Enoch Colby Jr.; Samuel Colby the father of my grand mother Sarah Colby and your grandmother, Emily Colby.

STANSTEAD, Que., June 23.—Harriet Child Colby, widow of the Hon. Charles Carroll Colby, minister without portfolio in the cabinet of the late Sir John A. Macdonald, and member of Parliament for Stanstead for twenty-four hours immediately after Confederation, is dead here at the age of 94. 1932

Charles Carroll Colby. graduated in Law at Dartmouth aged 19. Began to practice law in Stanstead 1855. Elected to Parliament 1867. Talented, cultured, quiet, resourceful - a force in politics. Returned to parliament in 1872 without opposition. He introduced the Colby Resolution which settled the school difficulty in New Brunswick. Returned to P. Hill 1891. 1889 took seat in Cabinet & was appointed President of the Privy Council of Canada. Retired from politics somewhat advanced in years and without means. The minister said that "This patriotism so necessary to a free people, and so nobly exemplified by Mr. Colby is in its essence sacrificial." He was a devout Christian - regular in his attendance upon the services of the church, deeply concerned in her prosperity, and expressing his religion in his daily life. author of Parliamentary Government in Canada.

In Memoriam.

His heart was kind, his instincts true, his mien of noble dignity, marked by perfect courtesy. Modesty and charity were his perpetual guests; he was content to sow while others reaped: His speech was balm to heal not stings to wound. The mean, the petty things he scorned. A good husband, a fond father, a faithful friend, a beloved and honored citizen — one of Nature's noblemen, he truly was. He passed to sleep as the evening shadows brought to close the day of a well spent life. A friend.

Moses French Colby M.D. 1814 studied medicine under Dr. Newcomb of Derby, Vt. attended lectures of the Medical Dept. of Yale College in 1817, entered the Medical Dept. of Dartmouth 1820 - graduated 1821. Practiced in Derby. In 1828 entered School of Practical Anatomy in Harvard College, where he pursued the regular course with attendance at the hospitals. He formed the acquaintance of Dr. Gould, the late president of the Mass. Medical Society and one of the most eminent savans of the time, with whom he sustained an interesting correspondence for many years - some parts of which have been published. In 1832 he moved to Stanstead. 1837 he received the honorary degree of A.M. from Dartmouth College.

After Prof. Noyes' death she came back to New England to reside at Lasell University Seminary, Auburndale, to educate her only daughter. For some years she was connected with Dr. Bragdon in the work of Lasell and many of the students will recall her sweet and exalted influence among them. He Christian character was beyond question — the strongest beauty of this cultivated woman. For many years she has seemed to live within the vale — so unusual was her spirituality: therefore it was but a step for her when the Lord called her and she passed from our sight but never from our memory. 130 History of Ashburnham, Mass. E. S. Stearns

Newberry Library F 74.A3 S36.
F 74.A3 S36

It is the most eastern of three towns in Worcester Co. Mass. 55 miles northwest of Boston. Surface hilly. Eight natural ponds in the township. Watershed. Founded on seven grants of land.

Cambridge, Newton & Lexington had to maintain the "Great Bridge" built in 1662 over the Charles R. between Brighton & Cambridge. The court granted each town a thousand acres June 22, 1734. Cambridge & Lexington grants were within township limits of Ashburnham. These grants were called Bridge ~~Grants~~. The town of Lexington received no benefit of the land for twenty years. Dec. 31, 1754 the whole tract was sold to seven German emigrants for 280 pounds. This place was called Dorchester, Canada until 1765 when it became ~~it became~~ Ashburnham.

The Germans were making substantial progress in their settlement of the Lexington Grant. They were independent of the proprietors and except in the sympathies of a new settlement they were a community by themselves.

The emigrants were educated people, equal in character and ability to their contemporaries in the township. The sturdy, frugal, industrious characteristics of the fathers have been renewed in their children. From the first they have been received into full fellowship and admitted on equal terms to all social and public privileges.

They settled in A— because Lexington's grant happened to be there and they could buy a continuous tract. John Kiblinger was one of the seven to buy. Peter Perry sold his interest to his associates. About 150 A. were reserved for common pasture land and the remainder was divided into fourteen lots of unequal areas. John Kiblinger was given a lot at the north end and another at the south east corner of the grant.

Bought in 1757 - Deed recorded Mar. 1758.

John Kiblinger first settled in Maine but soon removed to Boston. In 1758 with his wife and three children he came to Dorchester Canada, now Ashburnham, Mass. He was made one of two tithing men in 1765. He paid poll tax for two persons in 1770.

In 1775 John Kiblinger and Amos Kendall were two of five selectmen.

"John Kiblinger, one of the German emigrants, was an early settler in this town. Born in Germany 1722, Moved to A. in 1758. Settled on land known as the Constantine farm. He was a man of recognized character and ability. He was a selectman nine years between 1765 and 1777, the dates of incorporation and his death. His wife, Catherine Wolfe Kiblinger lives in the tradition of the town as an intelligent and accomplished lady. John died April 4, 1777. Catherine died in the home of one of her children in Vt. Mar. 28, 1821.

The qualification of a tithing man was a solemn presence and great acerbity of countenance. Only the most sedate and dignified were considered eligible to the office. John Kiblinger and Tristram Heny were the first. In character and ability they had no superior in the town.

34 The seven Germans were Henry Hole, Christian W. Whitman, Jacob Schoffe, Simon Rodamell, Petter Perry, John Rich and John Kiblinger.

Byron N. Clarke of Burlington Vt. State Secretary – Y.M.C.A. wrote thus of his grandmother,

---------- Mrs. Lucia Kibling Gove died at the home of her daughter. Mrs. Ann L. Clark at Lebanon N.H. on Nov. 21 aged 91 yr. 2 mos. 20 days. She was born on Kibling Hill in Strafford Vt. and was the daughter of Jacob and Sally (Blyfield) Kibling.

Her life was the typical life of a country woman with a common school education, her marriage, the coming of her children, their deaths in one of the epidemics of those times, the years of hard work and sacrifice that a home might be secured, the death of her husband and the closing years spent with her only remaining child and grand children. It is the story of another pathetic Vermont life.

Mrs. Gove was descended from patriotic ancestors who fought in the Indian, Colonial, Revolutionary and 1812 Wars. John and Katherine Wolfe Kiblinger came to America from Germany in 1753 and were among the early settlers of Ashburnham, Mass. Katherine who was a graduate from a musical college in Heidelberg was a famous singer in both Germany and America.

Mrs. Gove, who was a neighbor and personal friend of the late Senator J. S. Morrill, was a modest woman, intensely devoted to her home, her relatives, and her friends, of whom she had a large number, especially for a woman of her age.

I love old mothers – mothers with white hair.
And kindly eyes, and lips grown softly sweet
With murmured blessings over sleeping babes.
That speaks the calm of Sabbath afternoons
A knowledge in their deep unfaltering eyes
That far out reaches all philosophy

Twine with caressing touch, about them weaves
The silver-threaded fairy shawl of age,
While all the echoes of forgotten songs
Seem joined to lend a sweetness to their speech
Old mothers! As they pass with ~~fin~~ slow timed steps,
Their trembling hands cling gently to youths' strength.
Sweet mothers! As they pass, one sees again
Old gardens nooks - old roses - and old loves.

"The recent revival of Kendall Family interest was a request of Dr. Joseph M. Odiorne of Dept. of Medicine of Georgetown University, Washington D.C. He is himself a Kendall and has the Kendall mark. He wanted data in reference to the mark (extra finger + toes) with a view to preparing a scientific study of the subject."

Extract from a letter of George Adami (Professor of Physiology at McGill University, Montreal Canada) to Arthur L. Kendall, M.D. January 5, 1908 re investigation by Dr. Brockbank of Manchester, England: He says, "For a long time he – Dr. Brockbank – obtained only negative replies then he came on the scent of a family at or near Tamworth in Staffordshire. In these, William Kendall had two thumbs on his hand. His brother had a family, Thomas, John and Maria. Thomas had supernumerary thumb through life. I cannot make, from his correspondence, about John who was the informant, Maria, now Mrs. Taylor, had two extra fingers removed in childhood. John knew nothing about his family, beyond his grandfather who was said to be Tamworth bred, and this grandfather is said to have had no abnormalities.

Among other correspondents was a Mr. N.J. Kendall of 54 Ragden Road, Smethwicke. He wrote on February 21, 1906, "I have been making inquiries re polydactylism in my family. There has certainly been no case during the last century, and there is no mention of it before that date and as the family records are fairly complete since 1570 I think if it had been at all common etc – – . I can find no record of members leaving England in 1620. For about a hundred years including that time – 1620 – my family went under the name of Baines to escape persecution, political and religious. P.S. In 1620 the family was living at Ribbleton and Fallwood, near Preston (forty miles from Kendall, Westmoreland."

On Sept. 8, 1907, the same correspondent writes, "Last week, while in Preston, Lancashire, I met a cousin (daughter of my father's brother) who having been in Spain for some years, I had practically lost sight of. She was born with six digits on the left hand. She had never heard of another such case. I have also discovered that two members of our family migrated to America in or about 1620."

And further on Sept, 24, 1907 he wrote - It is very probable that the Tamworth Kendalls are of your family, as we have always been a prolific race. But owing to a large proportion joining the priesthood there are not a very large number of us now." "If you can discover anything of their pedigree you may be able to trace this line back to our stock, an account of which you will find in Gillow's Dictionary of English Catholics, if you have access to that book." If Gillow is not sufficiently detailed I can fill in the gaps + blanks."

In regard to the family in England, I can only say it is ancient and honorable. As early as the 14th, century it was noted for its family mark, i.e. the extra fingers and toes, not a very desirable distinction, but one that is still conferred upon some of its members."

Huddleston Family.

Samuel Huddleston. Dublin, Ind.

"As you see from the enclosed lineage of the English Hodelstons which I copy from Burke, the learned author upon the Peerage and Gentry of England, and which I enclose, the English family can be authentically traced to establishment in England, anterior to the Norman invasion.

The name would indicate a Danish or Scandinavian origin. You will remember that the Danes made several incursions upon the island or Britain in Saxon times. They possessed and occupied large portions of its territory. Much that passes for Saxon is really Danish. The Dane came and went by sea. In winter their own country was bleak and dreary: so whenever they could, they made new homes wherever they could gain foothold upon the shores. All the western edge of Europe was theirs and their kinfolks, the Northmen, so long as they could reach it by water.

Hoisting sail or plying strong oars, this race of majestic men, fair favored and strong of limb, heathen and barbaric struck terror wherever they went. The ship or galley, and its fierce, impetuous crew seemed to constitute one monstrous creature. England was a favorite hunting ground and these sea dragons silently gliding over the deep, embarked wherever they chose and drove the inhabitants back into the interior. Saxon & Dane and by this I mean the child, grand child or descendant of the Vikings, who had settled on shore and abandoned the sea, fought and alternately triumphed until both were the victims of William the Conqueror, himself a descendant of a Norse ancestor, who had established his sway on the north eastern shore of France. Nor was it until the Plantagenets, a race descended from a peasant who distinguished himself in the wars against the Normans and was appointed Seneschal of Anjou: it was not, I say, until this powerful race was on the English throne that the Saxon, Dane, and the Norman came to be welded into one people which, for want of a better name, has been called English.

From a village, settled and peopled by Danes, back in Yorkshire, came the Hodelstons. Hod, Hud, is cognate to our word head as in Hudson, Huddenfield, Huddam. Hodel is formed like Athel and Aigel and Adel and Vogel — the second syllable le having much the force of our le or ble in noble, a softening of the root by inflection. Hodelston as you will see, is very much like Athestane. Now, whether the signification be Head stone, head of stone or head (that is farthest point) of the quarry, is too much for me, but I am satisfied that it will be found right here.

The arms of the family are on a field gules, a fret argent.

Crest — Two arms, dexter and sinster embowed, vested argent, holding in their hands a scalp proper, the inside gules.

Motto. Soli Deo honor et gloria.

If, by any means, you could get into communication with the titled family in Cambridgeshire, England, you could learn much of what I can only outline. These lordly Britishers are very haughty and doubtless the present Hodelstons carry their noses very high as a family with an unbroken record for eight or ten centuries.

J.R. Huddleston writes from Minneapolis.

I came to the United States in 1851 — was born in Lincoln, England. My family connections were residents there for over five hundred years.

The family of Huddlestons claim to be lineal descendants of Athelstand, grand son of Alfred the Great. I had an old date book given me some years ago which mentioned the Huddlestons holding prominent positions as mayors, sheriffs, members of parliament in the 13" & 14" centuries.

I have a sister in England who is the wife of J. Edwin Cole Esq. J.P. Swineshead Hall near Boston, Lincolnshire

the Haddleston family and takes an intent in genealogy."

Millom Castle and the Huddlestons.

By. W. S. Cowper, F.S.A.

Reprinted from the Cumberland and Westmoreland Antiquarian and Archeological Societies Transactions. Vol. XXIV New Series.

Millom Castle is situated about two miles from the extreme southern point of Cumberland. It is on the edge of a patch of the upper Silurian rock. (Coniston flags) surrounded on the east, north and west by alluvium which in the early days when undrained must have formed an effective protection to the castle.

North west from the castle and about three miles distant is the rounded summit of Black Combe, 1969 ft. an ancient beacon hill. Immediately to the east the dangerous Duddon Sands are interposed between Cumberland and the Furness district of Lancashire. The most important of these castles were built after Bruce's raid through Copeland and Furness in 1322. Back of the castle to the northwest is a rough hill 2½ mi. long which rises 600 ft. Part of this was a deer park and till the 17th Century was full of aged timber and deer.

The highroad approaching Millom from Broughton and Hall Thwaits, skirts the base of the hill and turns sharp to the left at Low-house, passes Millom Castle after about a quarter of a mile and runs direct to the sands where the manorial gibbet stood.

Ownership.

The Boyvill period lasting a hundred years terminates 1250 when we find John de Huddleston, the first and his wife, Joane de Boyvill or de Millom. This Huddleston was a Yorkshire-man, since we are given the name of nine predecessors, the first of whom was Adam (of Co. York) and was named from a village in that county.

15th In Millom church we find the recumbant effigies in alabaster of a knight and his lady. He in armor of the 15th century laid on a handsome altar tomb, supported by angels bearing shields. Sir John Huddleston the seventh recorded Lord of Millom and his wife. A man of influence and activity

1. Knight of the Shire in 1468.
2. Steward of Penrith.
3. Warder of the Western Marches and Sheriff of Cumberland for life by Duke of Gloucester.

The Duke of York became Richard III in 1485 and the knights effigy at Millom wears a collar of suns and roses which was the collar worn by the adherents of the House of York.

17th Century, the beginning of the end for Huddlestons as for their Lancashire neighbors and relatives Kirkbys of Kirkby.

Wm Huddleston born 1603 was 14th lord of Millom. He raised - paid and clothed a regiment in the King's service of which he was colonel. He was also a knight.

Armory relates only to the emblems and devices. The word arms usually is employed in reference to the device on the shield only.

The shield is the most important part of the achievement, for on it are depicted the sig- and emblems of the house to which it appertains. The different marks expressive of the cadency of the members within that house; the augmentations of honor which the sovereign has conferred; the quarterings inherited from families which are represented, and the impalements of marriage; and it is with the shield, principally that the laws of armory are concerned, for everything else is dependent on the shield and falls into comparative insignificance along side of it.

A coat of arms must consist of at least one thing to wit- the field -

The field is usually of one or more of the recognized metals - colors or furs.
The metals are gold and silver - these being termed "or" and argent.

Huddleston

According to the best authorities, the Huddlestons of America are unquestionably descendants of Athelstan, son of King Edward the elder, who reigned in Great Britain from 925 to 942 A.D.

The first authentic record of the family in America is that of Capt. John Huddleston, commander of the ship "Bona Nova" which made many voyages from England to Virginia in the interest of the Virginia Company. He patented lands in Virginia. It was this generous man who shared his scant store of food with the starving Plymouth Colony in the dreadful year of 1622, and saved the Colony. He had four sons who served with distinction during the Revolution.

One of the captains in Washington's army was Daniel Huddleston of Halifax County, Virginia. John was killed in the Battle of Brandywine. Thomas of Pensylvania, was a heroic soldier, as was also his brother Henry who located in Georgia.

John Huddleston of Tennessee served in the War of 1812. There are many descendants of these men in most of the Southern States today.

"The Right to Bear Arms."

Arms are a sign of the technical rank of gentility. The use of arms is the advertisement of one's claim to gentility. Arms mean nothing more. By coronet, supporters and helmet can be indicated ones place in the scale of precedence.

By adding the arms for your wife you assert that she also is of gentle rank. Your quarterings show the other gentle families you represent.

By use of a coat of arms you assert your descent from the person to whom those arms were granted, confirmed or allowed. That is the beginning and end of armory - Why seek to make it mean more?

The term Coat of Arms is derived from the textile garment or "surcoat" which was worn over the armor, and which bore in embroidery a duplication of the design upon the shield.

A crest cannot lawfully exist without its complimentary coat of arms.

P. 60. The shield is the most important part of the achievment for on it are depicted the signs and emblems of the house to which it appertains.

Elizabeth Huddleston who came with her husband, James Huddleston Sr. & son James, was of English parentage. She lived to be 96 years of age and saw her great, great grandson, Edward T. Toomer (born 1836) She was small of stature & bright and alert and though she was feeble in her later years and did not go up and down stairs she sat out on her own little porch and enjoyed watching others. I have heard my grandmother (Lucinda Huddleston Toomer) tell that she used to smuggle strawberries and cake etc. to her little great grandmother who loved "goodies" like a child but the family thought they were not good for her.

May. 13. 1938. My grandmother told me many interesting stories of family history. She told me of placing her baby, my father, in her great grandmother's arms. My father was born in Columbia, Miss., in 1836. When he was an infant she went to visit her brother Thomas. William Huddleston built and lived in a large house on the hill. Uncle Willie we called him. He lived with my grandmother Mrs. T. I was a little tot. I remember him and remember his death. He was buried from my father's house" Mobile Ala. Magnolia Cemetery.

DIED—In this place on the 10th inst. Mrs. LYDIA HUDDLESTON, wife of Mr. Thomas Huddleston, in the 25th year of her age, leaving behind her a husband, two infant female children, and many attached friends, to mourn her early and untimely end.

Mrs. H. (formerly Miss Doolittle.) was a native of Mallbury, Mass., from whence she removed in early life with her friends, to New Briton, Conn. At that place, whilst quite young, she made an open profession of her faith in the Lord Jesus Christ for salvation. She removed to this part of the country in the autumn of '38, and was married in Dec. '39, since which time her walk and conversation have been known and admired by us all. She was a kind neighbor, a consistant member of the Presbyterian Church, an affectionate and dutiful wife, and a devoted mother.

About five months ago, she was attacked with chills and fever, from the effects of which, her system never recovered, but gradually declined and sunk finally into a confirmed consumption, which terminated her short career on earth, on the afternoon of the 10th inst. When apprised of the appalling fact, that she must die, she manifested no fears of death, but was perfectly resigned to the will of her Heavenly Father. She said, which was no more than the promptings of a mother's love, that she would rather live than die, in order to take care of her dear children.—But God, who is a father to the fatherless, and a friend to the poor and needy, can and will take care of her motherless babes.

DEATH OF JEPTHA DILLON.

Thousands who have had business to transact with The Denver Republican in the past thirty years will miss hereafter a familiar figure. Jeptha Dillon is dead. His rugged old face and kindly voice will no longer greet the callers at the circulation department. After thirty years of faithful and conscientious discharge of duty, the dark angel has given him his release and he is at rest.

It is something to have brought to one's daily duties unfailing fidelity through a span of time longer than the years of activity of the average man. It is proof of the metal of the man that through all the changes in the office for thirty years Mr. Dillon stayed at his post, doing his work and being kind, making friends and holding them to death.

Soldier that he was in times of war, in times of peace he was none the less the efficient, faithful soldier, attentive, capable and zealous. The Republican family feels a deep sense of personal loss which will be shared by thousands of patrons no less than by his large circle of personal friends and relatives.

John Huddleston.

John Huddleston was born Sept. 3, 1757 in South Carolina. He resided near Milledgeville Georgia during the life of his first wife, Sarah Terry. He married his second wife Sarah Curry in Georgia. They moved to Autauga County Ala. then to Lowndes Co. Mississippi about 1832. He was a trustee of the "Mississippi Female College" established in Columbus, Miss. in 1838. John Huddleston bought land in Lowndes County in 1832, lying on Luxapalila Creek and Tombigby River. Huddleston Ford and Huddleston Shoals are still known. In 1849 he moved with his family to Harrison County, Mississippi. He built a saw-mill and operated it until the Civil War broke out. He died in Pass Christian Nov. 29, 1862.

√√ John H. Lang says - John Huddleston was a solid, steady citizen, not an extremest in any way, never swore beyond saying, "Dad blast it." Never drank or smoked but I believe he chewed tobacco (but am uncertain) He was a leading man in his community, was Justice of the Peace some time in the 50's.

Thomas Jefferson Huddleston.

Obituary - East Lucas Township - near Iowa City, Iowa.

Thos. J. Huddleston - Highly respected for his excellent qualities as a neighbor, friend, and citizen. In early manhood Mr. Huddleston was engaged in the merchantile business at Mobile, in the "flush times of Alabama when that State was enjoying its greatest prosperity. This was in the palmy days of the South, when slave labor was producing millions in wealth and cotton was beginning to assert its claim as king. In the busy marts of the then growing and prosperous seaport of Mobile, the subject of this sketch laid the foundation for that methodical, careful and upright career of life which ever afterwards characterized him and made him honored and loved in every community where his lot was cast.

Quiet and unobtrusive, he was patient in his research after the right, and when he had arrived at a conclusion, it was usually the result of judgement and not of impulse.

Industrious to a fault, he found time to keep pace with the news and public events of the day. In the discharge of public duties imposed upon him by his neighbors and not sought for by himself he was a model officer. His official accounts were full, clear and correct to a cent—. His penmanship was a marvel of regularity and beauty and would put to shame the numerous scrawls which deface many of the public records of this county. He was by nature a business man; who, had he followed in the great channels of trade, would have ranked among the great capitalists of the nation: but he loved home and its quiet associations; and as one dear child and then another was taken he and his excellent wife, who survive him withdrew from the busy, bustling world, and surrounded by a few intimate friends quietly awaited the summons to join the loved ones who had gone before. For him the call to go had no terrors the beyond no shadows. With the weight of more than three score and ten years upon him, he drew the drapery of his couch about him, and was gathered to his father's leaving an irreproachable name as an inheritance to those who sorrow for his departure. Yesterday all that was mortal of him was laid beside the ashes of a son and daughter in the silent city. The same September sun that at his birth, glinted and gleamed among the pine clad forests of his early northern home bringing joy and gladness to happy parents, bathed in radiant splendor the lovely landscape of his last earthly home, as sorrowing friends followed him to his last resting place. Dr. Folsom delivered touching and appropriate remarks at the residence. The sorrowing wife and children have the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community in this hour of their sad bereavement.

√ Thomas Jefferson Huddleston.

T.J. Huddleston moved his family from Columbus, Miss to Clay Co. Missouri near Liberty in 1846. Two miles from Liberty. Came to Illinois in 1850 – Had two farms – about 6 miles southeast of Warsaw on the Quincy Road. We got the Township Hancock Co. We cut to near Iowa City, Iowa in 1863. (I believe it was 1862) L.K.T.

√ Col. Thos. Jefferson Winston was a friend of John Huddleston in Alabama or Mississippi. He had a valet named Boston. Boston came to work for the Grall family who lived next door to T.J. Huddleston near Iowa City. He recognized my grandfather and he and Boston had many long talks of the days in the South before the war.

√√ Quoted from a letter of Nov. 11, 1929 written by E.R. Hopkins Trust Dept. Columbus National Bank.

"I turned your letter over to Col. C.L. Lincoln, a veteran of Civil and Spanish american Wars, and who knew the Huddlestons who lived at Columbus. He informed me that Wm Holman Huddleston lived on land bought by John Huddleston and had six children – William, Lizzie, Scipio, James Knox Polk, Fox (nick name for a girl) and Tobe. all these children attended Columbus Schools. John Huddleston bought land here in 1832 – lying on Luxapalila Creek and Tombigbee River. Huddleston Ford and Huddleston Shoals still known to the writer and old residents. The Shoal is a nice bathing beach and I was told by old folks that this shoal was used as a baptizing place by the Baptists. Dr. W.L. Lipscomb's history of Columbus in regard to Mississippi Female College established in Columbus in 1838 names

John Huddleston as Trustee - among the leading citizens of that day.

The Columbus city officials appointed a Historical Committee of three. Mrs. William Baldwin, Dr. James W. Lipscomb, E. R. Hopkins. As no allowance was made for pay for stenographic and other clerical labor, nothing has been done. There has been no meeting of the commission even. It would be a labor of love for me to contribute my part in this work but I am a busy man and failing eyesight prevent. I hope I have in a small way given you some information and regret that I could not give you something worth while."

I regret that the name of James Huddleston does not appear in the roster of the War of 1812. I do have a record of the service of John Huddleston and of an Isaac Huddleston, both of which you will find copied below.

From Secretary of State — Atlanta, Georgia.

I regret to advise there are no records in this office that would indicate the former residence of James Huddleston, before coming to Georgia. In the list of drawers in the lottery of 1806, I find in Hancock County, the names Joseph, James and William Huddleston, each entitled to two drams. However, in the index of the actual grants of 1806, only the names of Robert Huddleston, of Mann's district, Oglethorpe county, and Isaac Huddleston, of Barnes district, Hancock county, appear.

The first received a lot in Wilkinson county and the latter in Baldwin county. Robert Huddleston was granted 220 acres in Oglethorpe county in 1805, but the land right grants fail to give the name of the county in which the drawee lived.

In the lottery of 1820 William Huddleston of

Miss Laura M. Kendall,
My dear Cousin,

Your favor of the 21st ult came duly to hand. It was as you say a surprize, but an agreeable one. Yr grand Father left this part of the country to go west when I was very young, but I think I have an accurate memory of him. I used to sit in his lap & he was quite fond of me. I recollect he once gave me a pair of small boots - my first - that gave me great pleasure and made me as proud as if I had been "a captain in the army" For long years there was only sporadic communication and then a long cessation of correspondance.

I am an old man now myself & don't write Social letters So must ask you to make allowance for brevity in this reply to yours of inquiry. I enclose copies of such records as I have had access to & I hope these will enable you to add some items of interest to the genealogical record you are compiling. With kindest regard I am

Dear Cousin,

Yours of 6 rec'd some days ago, am always glad to hear from you. You are of my mother's blood though diluted by several admixtures! Your grandfather Thos. J. Huddleston was my mother's brother & while I was a very small boy when he moved to Missouri I can recollect him and his two daughters Melissa & Callie quite well.

I know of Roderick Seal H—— being the son of my Uncle James but never saw him that I can recollect, think he was born after our families drifted apart more than a ½ Century ago! by the way, You have in Chicago another distant kinsman named "Willie Moon". I cannot give you his address but for quite a number of years he has been employed by some Dry goods firm in Chicago. He comes through the Wm Huddleston branch of the family.

I cannot give you the name of but one town in Georgia where the Huddlestons lived most of the family that I knew about lived at & near Milledgeville before moving to Alabama and Mississippi.

The trip you describe must have been delightful. I too visited Nashville some years ago & was at the famous Maxwell Hotel too but did not visit the Hermitage which I would have liked so much to do, while I stayed in Nashville only 3 or 4 days & was not feeling very well & so contented myself with such sight seeing as was to be found in the city & immediate surroundings.

It is kind of you to suggest an occasional interchange of letters & it would afford me pleasure to hear from you at any time you felt in the mood for writing but I am loath to make promises which I apprehend procrastination might cause failure to keep. I am old now & have outgrown the writing habit. I courted my wife by a long correspondance and won her heart "all right" but since that conquest I have retired from the field of social letter writing & rarely make the attempt now-a-days. & as to my family they are all grown and married & I reckon their letters to Mamma are about all they write! So you see however well disposed I am to meet you halfway, the outlook doesn't seem at all promising.

We are looking for a short visit from one of our daughters & her husband to night, & he comes to see us occasionally and we always enjoy the visits.

Now with love I am your old but recently found cousin

Edward T. Toomer.

Mrs. Frank H. Thomas,

I will write to you about your grandfather, Mr. Huddleston. They lived the next house east of us. There was big trees in road in front of it, and some north but all the trees were growing old and were leaning over the house a storm rain, hail and wind blew the tree on the north and smashed the summer kitchen down. Mr. Huddleston was a southern gentleman. He never passed me when I was a little girl but something pleasant to say. The house in town they moved out of when they moved out here is still standing. I used to carry him drinks when he was ploughing corn. I wish God would call me home soon. . . . . .

Dear Mrs. Thomas,

Yours received as to the portraits. I cannot tell you the cost of restoring the portraits. That will be a fine memorial for the Huddleston family. I do not remember much of the family. Mrs. Huddleston had a fruit-store when I was a child. I used to buy oranges of him when I went to school. I think that was when they first came here. The store was on Clinton Street opposite the Campus. I have a faint recollection of the portrait of Julia. They were some of our most highly respected citizens. I remember them as young ladies but was not acquainted with them as I was younger. They attended Perkin's Musical academy that was held here in the summer for four or five years. Prof. Perkins was from Boston, brought his staff of teachers with him. That was in the sixties. I think there is a picture of several of them of the different classes in our historical rooms, and the Huddleston girls were members. I wish I might tell you more. If I can think of any one who knew them I will get more information for you. I will write you later in regard to the price of restoring the portraits.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mrs. Thomas;

We have only the agricultural census reports in addition to the published reports. In the agricultural census manuscript volume we find a Thomas Huddleston listed as the owner of six acres of land in Lucas Township in 1850. This land and buildings was valued at $25.00. Farm implements and machinery listed at $31. Livestock at $131 and sales of products for 1849 at $171.

Records in the Johnson County courthouse give Charlotte Huddleston as the owner of 5.65 acres of land which she acquired by deed in 1868.

Dear Cousin,

It seems to me I wrote you, since you mentioned it, that Uncle Willie was the oldest, & had always imagined at first it was written by his parents who probably lived at Selma at that time it was probable as much to say, she was a native of Alabama as to say born in London or Paris.

In those early days our ancestors in America were not so well educated and from little things I have gleaned in days very long ago, I got the impression that Uncle Willie was one of those and yet the one that used big words. An old Methodist hymn book of Uncle Willie has written on the back in a very firm clear hand, "Taking on my 92nd year."

at his residence, near Washington, Autauga County, on Monday morning, the 1st instant, James Huddleston, Esq., in the 68th year of his life. Mr. Huddleston was a very affectionate husband, a kind and indulgent father. He was a native of Marland, a participant in the Revolution and was an undeviating friend of his country.

For the last ten years he has been afflicted with a paralytic affection, that has rendered him almost helpless, which he bore with Christian fortitude and resignation. During the latter part of his illness, he frequently repeated this passage of the scriptures: "O, Death, where is thy sting? O, Grave, where is thy victory?" A short time before his death he requested his children to read the 10th verse of the 41st chapter of Isiah: after which he calmly expired, and his spirit fled to that "home not made with hands, eternal in the Heavens!"

Selma Courier — Dec. 11, 1828.

Selma is in Dallas County, 58 miles west of (old Washington) Cahawba, the State Capital was in that county in 1825-26. At that time it had a most excellent newspaper. From cemetery records of two children in Selma cemetery I learned that Wm Huddleston son of James was living at Selma - at this time - I am quite sure he wrote this obituary. Lucile H. Thomas.

Letter from Jim Walton, Director, Gen. Sam Dale Historical Society — Eupora, Miss. Nov. 14, 1939. V 13

. . . . . .

Your (Huddleston) ancestor came to Mississippi shortly after the Dancing Rabbit Creek treaty of Sept. 27, 1830. The section in which he settled was known as a sort of "no man's land."

One of my ancestral kinsmen was the first post master at Columbus, a station on the Old Federal Road — Indians lived when the first white settlers came.

Sam Dale of Greensboro, Ga. moved the first white settlers into the region either as guide or by his own teams. The names of the first families were James Russell, John Coleman, Joseph Dale.

My great grand father signed the Declaration of Independence he was the first Gov. of Georgia. I was born Westmoreland Co. Va. Aug. 31, 1852. — Jim Walton.

Quotation from letter from Dr. Robert Lee Huddleston of V V Centreville Ala. Oct. 10, 1939. to Laura Kendall Thomas.

Your letter came to hand and I must say it opened up new memories to me about what my father told me and connecting all the data together I am constrained to believe your family and mine were of the same branch of Huddlestons. At the time of your great-great grand father's death (Dec. 1, 184 they were all closely related. This conclusion of mine I hope will not seriously offend you. My grand-father Huddleston (Joseph Allen) was living at Selma at the time of your gr.gr. grand father's death and my father was a boy of 10 or 12 years of age was living there at that time. My father was born 1825 in Oglethorpe County Georgia and they migrated to Cahaba Alabama & Selma a few years after that. Cahaba which at one time was the capital of Ala. was only a few miles from Selma.

1st My grand father had a brother named Carter Huddleston who was shot and killed at Cahaba Ala. . . . . after my grand father's death my father was carried back Georgia by his mother who was a Methodist & grew up manhood in Georgia.

Well its a long, long trail and nothing but a Sandal sentimental impulse would try to travel but these impulses motivated themselves in the Old and New Testaments in Genesis and also writings of the Apostles so why not you?

Sincerely yours
R. L. Huddleston.

Will of James Huddleston.

"In the name of God, Amen":

Know all men by these presents: That I, James Huddleston, of Autauga County, and State of Alabama, being in a weak state of body, but of sound mind, and appreciating that my stay on earth will be but short, do make and ordain this as my last Will and Testament, which unless revoked or altered by some future will or codicils, is to remain in full force and virtue forever.

In the first place, it is my Will and desire that all of my children, viz: Jane Nelson, Isaac Huddleston, Charity Rice, John Huddleston, Charlotte Rice, Stacy Davis, William Huddleston, Joseph Huddleston, and Elizabeth Ashley shall be made equal in the sum of six hundred dollars each; having already paid to Jane Nelson four hundred, to Isaac Huddleston the full amount of six hundred, to Charity Rice six hundred, to John Huddleston six hundred, to Charlotte Rice five hundred, to Stacy Davis six hundred, to William Huddleston five hundred, to Joseph Huddleston nothing, and to Elizabeth Ashley one hundred and thirty-five Dollars. The balance making up the six hundred dollars to each of my said Children above named who have not received their full share I wish to be paid from the sale of such property as my executors hereafter to be named may think best to dispose of, should I not pay them off previous to my death.

It is my desire further that all the balance of my property after paying the legacies above named should remain in the possession of my wife Susannah Huddleston during her life time for the support and comfort, which property she may dispose of in such manner as she may think proper with the consent of my executors or they with hers.

It is my will further that all of my property remaining after the death of my wife, should be equally divided among all of my children, or their heirs, except Jane Nelson and Isaac Huddleston and the shares which would fall to them are to be theirs only during their life-time, and then to go to their heirs, but not to be subject to their disposal.

It is my wish further that sufficient property should be sold to satisfy all my just debts, and that the distribution of the property after the death of my wife shall be in such manner as my executors may think advisable, whether by sale or otherwise, and it shall extend to all of my property both real and personal.

And I do hereby appoint John Huddleston, my son, and Thornton Rice my executors to carry into full effect this my last Will and Testament.

Lieut Abraham Doolittle was an Inn Keeper during the French War. His house was the most noted tavern on the road from Boston to New York. Lord Loudon, while on his way to Canada put up at Doolittle's house and his coach and four splendid horses.

The landlord was much in the habit of using large words out of their appropriate place and meaning. On this occasion he felt a special call for them. In the morning he carefully looked at the fine blooded team in presence of his titled guest and on each horse employed every superlative of a considerable character. Till, he came to the fourth animal. "What do you think of that one?" asked his lordship. "It is a precarious good horse", replied the landlord. The word precarious stuck to Mr. Doolittle as long as he lived. The house was moved from its old site and is now standing on the south corner opposite the Cong. Church. It was placed here by Eben Smith who occupied it as a hotel for several years.

I Abraham the emigrant was the progenitor of all who bear the name Doolittle in this country. Himself and his brother John were in Mass. very early. John died childless at Salem, Mass. Abraham was in New Haven before 1642 and the owner of a house. In 1644 he took the freeman's oath and was made chief executive officer (sheriff) of the county.

He was chosen by the people of New Haven as one of the Committee to superintend the affairs of the new settlement then (1669) just commenced as a village. The name of the village was changed to that of Wallingford and was incorporated, May 12, 1670 by act of General Court then sitting in Hartford.

He was one of the first to settle in the place and was there before its incorporation some two or three years. He was a member of the vidiguici committee in the time of King Philip's War. His dwelling was fortified during this time by a picket fort against any attack that might be made by Indians. He was several times chosen deputy from New Haven and afterwards from Wallingford to the General Court. He died Aug 16, 1690 age 70 yrs. He left an estate of £342. His first wife died. He m. Connecticut Historical Society Meeting. 23
Wm A. Beardsley of New Haven read a paper on "Ans 1921
New Haven Engraver and His Work — Amos Doolittle.

Engravings are of great historic value. Our forefathers were largely dependent on the art of the engraver for their illustrative work. A book was rich in illustration then if it had its one engraved frontispiece.

New Haven was the home of one of these engravers. His name was Amos Doolittle and he was born May 18, 1754. He belonged to the fifth generation in America. Abraham Doolittle being the founder of the family in America.

Abraham settled in New Haven about 1640 and owned a house; Amos was the son of Ambrose and Martha Munson Doolittle and next to the eldest in a family of thirteen. He learned the silversmith's trade.

The house in which he lived stood on College St. just above Elm and its site is now covered by the north end of East Divinity Hall. His shop was on the present College square fronting the Green about where Farnum Hall now is.

Doolittle possessed the genuine military spirit, being an original member of the second company of the Governor's Guard and was among those who agreed to go to the front after the Battle of Lexington, under the command of Benedict Arnold. As a company they remained about three weeks at Cambridge. He turned his attention to engraving on copper. In Dec. 1775 advertisements for a series of plates made their appearance

No 1. Battle of Lexington
2. A View of Town of Concord.
3. Battle at North Bridge Concord
4. South part of Lexington

The sets sold for six shillings for the plain and eight shillings for the colored.

A set today is valued at $1500 ⁰⁰

The plates are exceedingly crude

There was among the volunteers who went to Cambridge a young portrait painter named Ralph Earle who made the drawings from which the plates were engraved.

The plates probably constitute the first series of historical engravings executed in America. The mistake has been made of claiming Doolittle as the earliest Connecticut engraver on copper. There was an engraver in New Haven who antedates him, Abel Buell. And there was Deacon Martin Bull who did some engraving.

Doolittle was a prolific engraver, among his works being a metzotinto print of John Hancock.

In 1779 Doolittle took part in opposition to the British landing at New Haven.

At his shop on College St. he not only made his own plates but the prints as well and did other printing.

Doolittle in connection with Daniel Read published twelve numbers of the American Musical Magazine, the plates being engraved by him. He also executed three displays of the United States of America one bearing the likeness of Washington, another John Adams and the other Jefferson. The maps for Jedediah Morse's American Geography - numerous portraits for histories and many others.

Doolittle name one of most ancient in England — originated in Normandy almost a thousand years ago. appears among the English records for hundreds of years before the first of the Stuarts was born.

The Family's bloodstream merges into history, via Jarl Rognvald, King of Mora, Norway, who reigned A.D. 850. His blood emerged with that historic strain, in the marriage of his son Rolf the Ganger to Popa, a daughter of Beranger, Count of Bayeax.

Beranger belonged at the time to the most illustrious family in France: the Emperor Charlemagne was his grandfather, and he was the son of Pepin, King of France, who succeeded his father, Martel, King of the Franks or France. Charlemagne's Doolittle lineal son was Louis, who was the father of Beranger, and of Charles the Simple, whose daughter was the second wife of Rolf the Ganger, and a first-cousin of Popa, the mother of William Longsword who was the great grandfather of Rudolph Doolittle who ruled Normandy as Regent from 1035 to 1053, when he succeeded in making his nephew William the Seventh Duke of Normandy, and a little later King of England.

History of Poultney Vt. 1761-1875 F. 974366.4

Spring of 1777 Gen. Burgoyne — 10 000 British — Fight at Hubbardton July 7th. All men in Poultney responded to call to arms but one who was an invalid. Our supposition is that they were all in Hubbardton but the last of this we have no positive knowledge. American forces had to retreat. Word reached Poultney on the Sabbath day (8th) Many were in church. They left at once — some not even visiting their homes. Mrs. Daniel Richard, subsequently Mrs. Lindsey Joslin, passed directly from the school house by her own home carrying one child 3 mos. old in her arms and leading another 4 yrs. old. thus going on foot to Bennington without stopping for refreshment. There was a military road from Bennington to Burlington. The men returned and found their families gone. They followed them to Bennington. Burgoyne and his Hessians came and women were sent to Pownal. Husbands helped win battle of Bennington Aug. 16, 1777. The women went to their old homes in Mass. and Conn. but returned to Poultney the next fall and spring. Thirteen women fled.

When Vermont lands were being opened to settlement after the French and Indian War, an organization was formed at Canaan Connecticut with Ethan Allen (later famous at taking of Ft. Ticonderoga) as an officer, to form a settlement at Poultney, Vt. Daniel and Huldah (Fellows) Richards of Canaan, then young people, were interested and joined in forming the settlement of Poultney in 1773. Huldah was then 19. They endured the fatigue and privations of pioneer life until 1777, when Burgoyne's army invaded the country with Indian allies, and all the settlers were forced to flee. The flight was on the Sabbath when notice was given to the women assembled for worship that their husbands were being driven back by the British. Mrs. Richards at once took her two children (one 4 yrs. old the other 3 mos. carrying the latter and leading the elder) hurried past her home without delay for food or clothing and started resolutely for the "land of Canaan" her native town. Through a dense woods and wilderness they pursued their way expecting every moment to be overtaken by the merciless foe or waylaid and murdered by their savage allies. At night they rested their weary bodies on the ground, but at earliest dawn hurried away through the forest. They reached Bennington in safety and remained there until her father sent a horse to convey her and her babes to the parental home in Canaan. After all danger from the enemy was passed Huldah returned to her desolate home in Poultney, which had been stripped of everything valuable. However, under a ledge of rock first north of the house she found her looking glass and a few articles of iron ware. These were owned by Dea. Joslin of Poultney in 1875 as valued relics. Huldah continued to reside at Poultney on the farm where she and Daniel first located - until her sudden death Sept. 15, 1839 at the age of 84.
